Juniors take to courts at Flushing Meadows

The US Junior Open kicked off on Sunday 1 September with the boys' draw promising a close fight for supremacy and the possibility of a new star emerging in the girls' event.

The boys' draw has all the makings of a classic with the current top ten ranked players keen to take their chances. That top ten includes all three winners of the year's Grand Slams so far - French boys Clement Morel and Richard Gasquet who won the Australian Open and Roland Garros respectively and Australia's Todd Reid triumphed at Wimbledon. Added to this list are the winners of each of the other Grade A tournaments this rollover year, Sweden's Robin Soderling (Orange Bowl), Marcel Felder from Uruguay (Coffee Bowl), Marcos Baghdatis from Cyprus (Osaka Mayor's Cup and Banana Bowl) and Argentina's Brian Dabul (Italian Open). Completing the list of top ten boys at this year's US Open are Algeria's Lamine Ouahab, Uruguay's Martin Vilarrubi and Belgium's Steve Darcis.

All of these players will be only too aware that the past two winners of the US Open title, USA's Andy Roddick in 2000 and Gilles Muller from Luxembourg in 2001, both went on to end the year as ITF Junior World Champion. The introduction of Grand Slam bonus points in 2002 has made the last Slam of the year even more important for those chasing the end of year title. The 500 points on offer means that a win by any of the top nine boys would catapult them to the top of the rankings.

Of those most likely to shine in New York, 16-year-old Gasquet looks like being one of the title favourites. The French boy caused a sensation earlier this year by becoming the youngest person ever to win an ATP Masters Series match aged 15 years. (Continued on page 2)

Rain delays stop play in New York

Serena Williams is the first player to advance to the quarterfinals in the mens' and women's singles after her match was the only one to be completed yesterday because of persistent rain. Williams defeated Daja Bedanova 63 36 62. Turn to page 3 for details of today's play. For further information, please visit the official website at www.usopen.org

Barbora Strycova (CZE)

Gasquet then went on to prove he is no flash in the pan by winning his home junior Grand Slam and picking up a number of Men's Circuit titles during the summer, lifting his ATP ranking to 172. The test will be whether Gasquet can translate his success on clay to the hard and faster courts of Flushing Meadows.

In the girls' draw, 16-year-old Barbora Strycova, the current World No.1 and Australian Open champion will be the clear favourite due to the absence of the other Grand Slam winners. Roland Garros champion Angelique Widjaja has been trying her luck in the main draw, scoring a newsworthy win over Anna Kournikova in the first round. Wimbledon champion Vera Douchevina is also missing from the draw, making the field one of the most open in recent years. A win for Strycova would give her an almost unassailable lead in the World Champion race as she would collect bonus points for her third Grade A win of the year.

Positions in the Race remain the same as last week because the final Grand Slam of the year, the US Open, is in progress.

The top seven players in the Race automatically qualify for the eight player 2002 Tennis Masters Cup in Shanghai, co-owned by the ITF, Grand Slams and ATP.

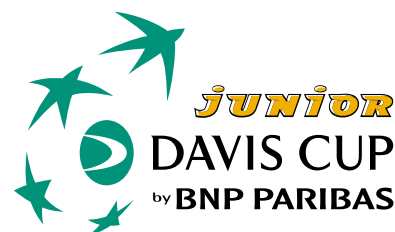

LEADER BOARD

Position	Player Name / Nationality	Points
1st	Hewitt, Lleyton (AUS)	595
2nd	Safin, Marat (RUS)	423
3rd	Henman, Tim (GBR)	400
4th	Agassi, Andre (USA)	392
5th =	Costa, Albert (ESP)	386
5th =	Moya, Carlos (ESP)	386
7th	Ferrero, Juan Carlos (ESP)	378
8th	Roddick, Andy (USA)	333
9th	Canas, Guillermo (ARG)	329
10th	Federer, Roger (SUI)	326

However, the Russian girls also have a tradition of doing well at the Grand Slams; they had two representatives in the Roland Garros semifinals and took three of the four semifinal places at Wimbledon. One of those Wimbledon semifinalists, the 13th ranked Maria Kirilenko, 15, will be a serious threat in New York.

As for home hopes, the US hasn't had a girls' singles champion since 1995 when Tara Snyder claimed the title. This year their best chance of glory could come in the shape of 16-year-old Ally Baker. Baker, who trains at the Evert Academy in Florida, was awarded a wild card into the main draw and was unlucky to go out in the first round to the experienced Elena Likhovtseva 46 62 76(3). The confidence that comes with knowing that she can compete with the best could help her to bring the junior title home in the junior draw.

The Junior Davis Cup by BNP Paribas and Junior Fed Cup for boys and girls aged 16 & Under will take place at La Baule, France from 9-14 September. For further details, visit the official website, www.itfjuniors.com

Defending champions Hewitt and Venus Williams march on

The second week of action from Flushing Meadows, New York is set to unfold with the defending champions Lleyton Hewitt and Venus Williams still very much in the running.

Hewitt is scheduled to play Czech Republic's Jiri Novak for a place in the quarterfinals later today, while Venus Williams is up against fellow American Chanda Rubin in the Round of 16.

Other intriguing match ups today include four-time champion Pete Sampras of USA who is against Great Britain's Greg Rusedski. Sampras will be hoping that Rusedski might still be feeling the effects of his gruelling five set win over Paradorn Srichaphan. Younes El Aynaoui from Morocco is hoping to reach his first Grand Slam quarterfinal in the US Open with a fourth round victory over South Africa's Wayne Ferreira. Spaniard Alex Corretja takes on home hope Andy Roddick while Andre Agassi faces American compatriot Jan-Michael Gambill.

In the women's event, the fans will be treated to several enticing clashes, including a contest between two former world number ones, Monica Seles and Martina Hingis. Kim Clijsters will play France's Amelie Mauresmo in what should be a very closely fought match. Clijsters' Belgian compatriot Justine Henin faces the ever improving Daniela Hantuchova of the Slovak Republic while USA's Lindsay Davenport will take on Italy's Silvia Farina Elia.

The top seeds are still in contention in the men's and women's doubles championships. Mark Knowles and Daniel Nestor and reigning US Open women's doubles champions Lisa Raymond and Rennae Stubbs are in the Round of 16 in their respective events. There was a shock in the opening round of the mixed doubles with the favourites and defending champions Rennae Stubbs and Todd Woodbridge of Australia exiting at the hands of Martina Navratilova and Leander Paes.

ATHOC issues pictograms

The Organising Committee of the Athens Olympic Games (ATHOC) recently revealed the Sport Pictograms for the 2004 Games.

The Pictograms were inspired by two elements of ancient Greek civilisation. Firstly, Cycladic figures with their simplicity of shape, unique silhouettes of human form and, secondly, black-figure vases where a solid black shape describes the human body and a line highlights the outline of the form.

The tennis pictogram looks like this:

Also revealed recently were the Sport Specific Mascots. The two mascots, Phevos and Athena, have been adapted into various forms showing sporting achievements. The tennis mascot is:

ITF Development Programmes praised

The ITF Development Programme was commended highly at the Association of Summer Olympic International Federations (ASOIF) meeting held last week in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Dr Tamás Aján, an International Olympic Committee (IOC) Member and representative of the IOC Sport For All Commission at the ASOIF Annual General Assembly, highlighted the ITF's programme during a speech reminding International Sports Federations of their tasks and roles in the areas of promoting Sport For All activities within the Olympic family.

The mission of the Sport for All Commission is to promote the Olympic ideal that sport is a human right for all individuals regardless of race, social class and sex. The movement encourages sports activities that can be exercised by people of all ages, both sexes and different social and economic conditions.

The most important aim of the Commission is to encourage the practice of Sport for All, particularly in the developing world, via International Sports Federations (IFs), National Olympic Committees (NOCs), and national sports organisations.

Dr Ajan said, "Two federations must be given special mention and credit: football and tennis. Both of them have marvellous worldwide Sport for All projects with long traditions, and their grassroots development organisation is truly admirable. Both IFs also invest substantial funds into their projects."

ITF President Francesco Ricci Bitti, who is a Council member of ASOIF, said: "We at the ITF are pleased to have had the years of hard work and dedication to developing tennis worldwide, and the organisation of these projects by the Development Department, in conjunction with the Member Nations of the ITF, recognised at such a high level."

ASOIF has a 28 strong membership of International Federations who came together to co-ordinate and to defend the common interests of its members and to ensure close co-operation between its members, and members of the Olympic Movement and other organisations.

ASOIF is administered by an executive body, the Council, which consists of seven individual members, all of whom are presidents of Summer Olympic International Federations.

Tobin is joined by Gianni Clerici who has also been selected as a Contributor Nominee. The Italian is an acclaimed tennis editor, columnist and author who has been a sports writer since 1965.
