Winning French team (Photo: Ron Angle)

France ended a ten-match losing streak against the USA to capture only its second Fed Cup title at Moscow's Olympic Stadium on Sunday. Amelie Mauresmo defeated Meghann Shaughnessy 62 61 to give France a winning 3-0 lead en route to an eventual 4-1 final triumph.

Mauresmo, the world No. 4, won all four singles rubbers during the week as France regained the title it previously won in 1997. However it was the performances of Mary Pierce, making her first appearance since the 1997 final, that were the key to French success.

On Saturday, Mauresmo gave France an early boost with a 64 63 victory over the previously unbeaten Lisa Raymond, before Pierce scored an epic 63 36 86 win over US No. 1 Meghann Shaughnessy. Martina Navratilova, at 47 the oldest player to contest a Fed Cup final, scored a consolation point for the USA when she partnered Raymond to victory in the fifth rubber.

"I feel such pride, and joy for the whole team," said Mauresmo, who sank to her knees with emotion when a Shaughnessy forehand went into the net on the second match point. She jumped into the arms of captain Guy Forget, and shed tears of joy at the courtside, before joining her teammates and support staff in an on-court celebratory can-can.

"I really wanted to win the Fed Cup," added Mauresmo, who ranks this alongside her ten WTA Tour titles and run to the final of the 1999 Australian Open. "It's right up there, it's one of the biggest moments, maybe the biggest one, and sharing this with a team makes it also very special."

The triumph allowed Guy Forget to join his former teammate Yannick Noah as the only people ever to have captained winning Davis Cup and Fed Cup teams. France had earlier been involved in a tough battle in the semifinals against the host nation Russia, who had been looking to follow their Davis Cup-winning countrymen in securing a first Fed Cup triumph.

Australia and Spain seek Davis Cup glory

Australia bids to avenge its defeat in the 2000 Davis Cup final when it takes on Spain in the World Group Final of the 2003 Davis Cup by BNP Paribas at Melbourne Park on 28-30 November.

In its quest to hold up the prestigious Davis Cup trophy for only the second time in 68 Davis Cup appearances, Spain goes in as underdog and will need to dig deep to repeat its champion performance of 2000. On a specially-laid grass court in Rod Laver Arena, the Spaniards are a long way from their favoured clay court surface in Barcelona where they hosted Australia in the final three years ago.

With eight Spanish players in the world's top 50, the Spanish captain Jordi Arrese has no concerns with strength in depth and has made one change to the line-up that has driven Spain to the final. Feliciano Lopez replaces Albert Costa and joins compatriots Juan Carlos Ferrero, Carlos Moya and Alex Corretja in the team. Lopez has been drafted into the squad at the expense of former Roland Garros champion Costa because of his better grass court game. The big-serving 22-year-old has twice reached the round of 16 at Wimbledon and recently progressed to the quarterfinals of the Madrid Masters, defeating Moya en route.

Arriving in Melbourne last week, the Spaniards will be looking to get as much grass court practice as possible, while taking care not to burn out their two star players, Roland Garros champion Juan Carlos Ferrero and 1998 Roland Garros winner Carlos Moya. Ferrero and Moya, ranked three and seven in the world respectively, both arrived in Melbourne straight from Houston where they competed in the end-of-season Tennis Masters Cup. As in Spain's previous ties this year, it is expected that Ferrero and Moya will fill the singles berths, with Lopez and Corretja contesting the doubles.

Australian captain John Fitzgerald has decided to stick with the same four players who have taken the nation to the final with defeats of Great Britain, Sweden and Switzerland. However on this occasion the big-serving Mark Philippoussis, who finished the year ranked No. 9 in the world above Lleyton Hewitt at No. 16, will be Australia's No. 1 singles player. Wayne Arthurs and veteran doubles player Todd Woodbridge complete the Australian line-up.

The Aussies have been making the most of their grass court choice, not least of all Hewitt who shortened his tournament season to stay at home and prepare for the final. Much like his first major triumph, the 2001 US Open, which came after a rest, Hewitt is banking on his fresh legs that have played far fewer matches than Ferrero and Moya.

Hewitt, who holds the Davis Cup trophy in high regard, has a lot to play for. His 1999 Davis Cup victory was tarnished slightly after losing both singles in the final against France, when Mark Philippoussis carried the load. And two years ago he was beaten in crucial singles and doubles matches in a shock 3-2 loss to France in Melbourne.

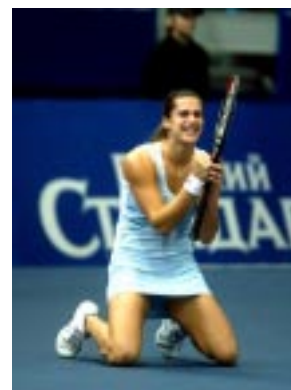

Both teams have up until one hour before the official draw on Thursday 27 November at 10:00 (23:00 GMT the previous day) to make up to two team substitutions. For further information, please visit www.daviscup.com.

After Vera Zvonareva lost the opening rubber to Mauresmo 62 62, Russian No. 1 Anastasia Myskina levelled the tie by saving a match point in an epic 46 76(2) 75 triumph over Pierce. Congratulated afterwards by former Russian President Boris Yeltsin, Myskina said: "This is definitely one of the most satisfying victories of my career. The crowd was awesome. They helped me a lot and I really appreciate that they came today."

Myskina was involved in another three-set tussle the following day, but lost narrowly to Mauresmo 67(3) 63 64. Pierce then completed the French victory with a 64 36 63 victory over Zvonareva. "I was very relieved," Pierce said afterwards. "Guy [Forget] had told me after the Myskina match that I still had another one to play, that we hadn't lost, and in the final set there he kept telling me to go forward and be aggressive, and that was it."

The other semifinal was a triumph for experience over youth with the USA seeing off a weakened Belgian team 4-1. However the USA did not have things all their own way, with Meghann Shaughnessy needing 3 hours 12 minutes to see off junior world No. 1 Kristen Flipkens 67(4) 76(8) 97, after Lisa Raymond defeated Els Callens 62 61 in the opening rubber. Callens managed to keep Belgium in the hunt with a shock 63 76 victory over Shaughnessy, before Raymond completed USA's triumph with a 62 61 win over Elke Clijsters, a replacement for Flipkens.

Despite finishing on the losing side in the Fed Cup for the first time in 23 ties, Martina Navratilova's two doubles victories with Lisa Raymond allowed her to keep up her record of never having lost a Fed Cup rubber, a record she has now extended to 39 matches.

France, who top the new ITF Fed Cup Nations Ranking, will begin the defence of its Fed Cup title with a home tie against Germany in next year's first round on 24-25 April. For further information, please visit www.fedcup.com.

The International Tennis Hall of Fame and the ITF have announced that Larisa Savchenko-Neiland of Latvia is the recipient of the 2003 Fed Cup Award of Excellence. The award was presented to Savchenko-Neiland during the Fed Cup Final in Moscow by ITF President Francesco Ricci Bitti and Russian Tennis Federation President Shamil Tarpishev.

The Fed Cup Award of Excellence was inaugurated by the International Tennis Hall of Fame and the International Tennis Federation in 2001. The purpose of the award is to recognize the importance of Fed Cup international team competition and its mission by honouring the individuals who represent these ideals.

"Larisa Savchenko-Neiland is one of the greatest players ever to compete in Fed Cup," said ITF President Francesco Ricci Bitti. "She is a most deserving recipient of the Fed Cup Award of Excellence from the International Tennis Hall of Fame and the International Tennis Federation."

Larisa Savchenko-Neiland was born in Lvov, Ukraine in 1966. She was a member of the Soviet Union Fed Cup team from 1983-1991. She played her first match for Latvia in 1992, and is a present member of the Latvian Fed Cup Team. Savchenko-Neiland has played in 57 career Fed Cup ties, sharing second place on the all-time Most Ties Played list with Virginia Wade (GBR) and just behind Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (ESP), both previous Award of Excellence winners. ITF / OS / SATA Regional Level II Coaches Course

Participants at the Level II Coaches Course

The ITF/Olympic Solidarity Southern African Regional Level II Course was held at the University of Pretoria in South Africa on 10-21 November. The course, which was organised in conjunction with the South African Tennis Association (SATA), was conducted by Karl Davies, ITF Development Officer for East & Southern Africa and Machar Reid, ITF Assistant Development Research Officer.

Twenty-three of the most successful Level I coaches from the Southern African region, representing South Africa, Botswana, Lesotho, Mauritius, Malawi, Namibia, Swaziland, Zambia and Zimbabwe, were invited to attend the 12-day ITF Level II Coaches course. These coaches were selected from National Level I courses conducted in the region since the coaches education programme first began in conjunction with the ITF in 1993.

The participants learnt to master all aspects of advanced tennis including topics such as technique, tactics, psychology, fitness training, coaching diagnosis, correction and communication. As part of the course syllabus, the participants were required to work with 24 top players from the ITF/SATA Training Centre and the South African Tennis Performance Centre (SATPC).

The South African Tennis Association proved to be excellent hosts, with the coaches and the experts enjoying an exhausting but rewarding 12 days. Karl Davies and Machar Reid commented: "We are very grateful to Olympic Solidarity and SATA for helping with such a course since this goes a long way to satisfy the hungry knowledge of the coaches in the region, and such courses are crucial to the development of coaches and players in the region."

Obituary Bob Carmichael

The ITF was saddened to learn of the death of former international player and elite coach, Bob Carmichael, who died at his home in Melbourne aged 63.

A founding member of the ATP (Association of Tennis Professionals), Carmichael reached the quarterfinals of Wimbledon in singles, doubles and mixed doubles in 1970, the same year he achieved a Top Ten ranking in singles. In 1979, his last year on the circuit, he was a doubles semifinalist at Wimbledon and the US Open.

Carmichael later coached Pat Rafter and had an impact on the careers of several Australian players including Darren Cahill and Lleyton Hewitt. In addition, he coached leading doubles specialist Leander Paes.

Carmichael's involvement with the sport also included working for Tennis Australia and the Australian Institute of Sport as a coach, taking leading players overseas in teams.
