Stars shine at Olympic Tennis Event

Rafael Nadal, Elena Dementieva, Roger Federer and Stanislas Wawrinka, and Venus and Serena Williams all added gold to their country's medal count at last week's Olympic Tennis Event at the Beijing Olympic Tennis Centre. For Nadal, who became the world's No. 1 player today, and the Swiss pairing, this was their first ever Olympic medal. Meanwhile Dementieva and the Williams sisters all returned to the medal podium after their previous successes at Sydney 2000, where Dementieva lost to Venus Williams in the gold medal match and the Williams sisters took gold in the women's doubles.

ITF President Francesco Ricci Bitti said: "Tennis has been showcased before the world as one of the most exciting sports in the Olympic Games. The support of our players has been outstanding and it has been great to see so many of the top stars fulfil their dreams of winning a medal at the Olympic Games. We have seen a great evolution over the 20 years in Olympic tennis with a medal becoming one of the most coveted prizes for our athletes. Tennis is proud to be part of the Olympics and we look forward to London 2012 when one of the temples of tennis, Wimbledon, will host the next Olympic Tennis Event."

Nadal was one of those players to embrace the Olympic experience enjoying every minute of his stay in the athletes' village. "Every day was different. So every day was a special moments. I enjoy a lot more than a normal tournament. Is totally different experience. I love that," said Nadal. The Spaniard continued his imperious form with a straight sets victory over Chilean Fernando Gonzalez 63 76(2) 63. "I know how difficult is win these things, and especially here, because you only have one chance every four years. And win here for me is, well, unbelievable."

Gonzalez failed to capitalise on his chances in the second set when he had two set points on Nadal's serve at 5-6. However his second place at least ensures he has a full set of medals following his doubles gold and singles bronze in Athens. This medal is Chile's first of the Games.

“I came here with a dream, with a goal to get one medal for my country and for me. When I get to the final, of course I want the best one, you know. But I know for me it’s a great feeling. I mean, it’s a great goal. I did it in Athens and now I did it here. The Olympics means really much for me.”

Despite ending Roger Federer’s Olympic singles dream, James Blake (USA) was unable to go home with a medal, losing his bronze medal play-off match to Novak Djokovic (SRB). The Serb asserted his authority from the start, defeating the American 63 76(3).

The women’s singles event emphasised the current strength of Russian women’s tennis, with the podium dominated by Russian players. Dementieva always rises to the Olympic occasion and Beijing was no different. The Russian came to the Olympics off the back of previous good form at Roland Garros and Wimbledon and fought back from a set down against Dinara Safina to take victory 36 75 63.

“I cannot even compare Grand Slam and Olympic Games because it’s just so much bigger. This is a dream for every athlete, you know, just to be here. But to be an Olympic champion, this is the top of the career,” said Dementieva. “I couldn’t think about anything else except Olympic Games. So I did all the preparation. I didn’t play any tournaments in the States that I like to play because I was working hard in Florida just to get used to the humidity and just to be able to play in this extremely hot condition. All the hard work just pays off today and I’m just feel happy.”

For large stretches of the match Safina looked the more likely winner. She won the first set and then recovered from 1-4 down in the second. At 5-5 she had the chance to break, and should at least have taken the match into a tiebreak. But a double-fault at 40-15 in the 12th game proved very costly, as Dementieva came back to break and take the set. Safina blamed her recent heavy schedule for the defeat. “I’m disappointed that I lost. But from the other hand, if I see things around, what I’ve done, still coming from States, winning two tournaments in a row, coming here, I didn’t have even just one normal day off.” Vera Zvonareva completed the Russian domination defeating China’s Li Na in straight sets, 60 75.

There are few milestones left for Roger Federer to achieve, but he achieved one of his lifetime’s dreams on the second-last day of the Olympic tennis event, winning an Olympic medal at the third attempt. He partnered Stanislas Wawrinka to victory over Simon Aspelin and Thomas Johansson of Sweden 63 64 67(4) 63 in the men’s doubles.

“Right now this is quite a surreal moment,” said Federer. “The joy of sharing this victory with somebody else who I like very much, who we had a great two weeks with, it’s quite different to anything I’ve ever gone through. I could only maybe compare it a little bit to some incredible Davis Cup victories I’ve ever had.”

The women’s doubles gold went to Serena and Venus Williams, who maintained their unbeaten Olympic record with a crushing 62 60 win over Anabel Medina Garrigues and Virginia Ruano Pascual (ESP). It’s the USA’s first tennis gold since the sisters won in Sydney and as Serena missed Athens through injury, they have yet to lose a doubles match together in Olympic competition. ## US OPEN Countdown to the US Open Olympic Gold medallists Rafael Nadal (ESP) and Elena Dementieva (RUS) head to New York in top form as they bid for their first US Open titles. Nadal can do no wrong this year; the last three months have seen him win Roland Garros and Wimbledon, take Olympic glory and ascend to the top of the world rankings. Dementieva will be looking to improve on her quarterfinal appearance at Roland Garros and semifinal defeat at Wimbledon. Defending champion Roger Federer (SUI) is bidding for a fifth successive men's singles title in New York while the women's competition is without its defending champion, following Justine Henin's retirement earlier this year.

World No. 1 Rafael Nadal and Britain's Andy Murray head the men's standings in the US Open Series following victories at the Rogers Masters and the Cincinnati Masters respectively. Victory at the Rogers Cup clinched the women's US Open Super Series title for Dinara Safina (RUS) earlier this month. The players will now compete for the largest payout in tennis history at the 2008 US Open: $2.6 million ($1.6 million for winning the US Open and a $1 million bonus for winning the US Open and the US Open Series).

Second and third place finishers of the US Open Series will also compete for bonus prize money at the US Open. Second place US Open Series finishers can win an additional $500,000 bonus if they win the US Open. Third place US Open Series finishers can win an additional $250,000 bonus if they win the US Open.

The USTA announced that Americans Amer Delic, Brendan Evans, Scoville Jenkins, Austin Krajicek, Jesse Levine, Sam Warburg, plus Australian Carsten Ball and Frenchman Laurent Recouderc have been awarded men's singles main draw wild card entries. Americans Gail Brodsky, Jamea Jackson, Asia Muhammad, Melanie Oudin, Ahsha Rolle, CoCo Vandeweghe, plus Séverine Bremond of France and an Australian yet to be named are the eight women's wild cards.

The US Open qualifying event begins tomorrow, Tuesday 19 August, and runs until Friday 22 August. Men's and women's singles qualifying sees 128 players contest 16 places in the main draw. The 2008 US Open takes place at the USTA Billie Jean King National Tennis Center from Monday 25 August until Sunday 7 September. The draws will be held at the Times Centre at 11:00 local time on Thursday 21 August. For all the latest US Open news, visit www.usopen.org.

Antigua & Barbuda claims Nations Cup

The Antigua & Barbuda team

Antigua and Barbuda lifted the Nations Cup at this year's ITF 13 & Under Caribbean Development Championships, which were held in Antigua and Barbuda from 11-16 August. The event was another record-breaking success, with an entry of 28 boys and 21 girls from 15 nations. Live web updates were available and attracted over 8,800 hits.

In the boys' event it was a battle between Grenada and Bahamas, with Philip Major (BAH) defeating Yannik James (GRN) 63 62 in the singles. The finalists met again in the doubles final, paired with respective teammates Treajh Ferguson (BAH) and Alex Hossle (GRN). The Bahamian pair went on to win the title 42 53.

The girls' singles final was an all-Antiguan affair with Chassidy King defeating Keishorea Armstrong 62 64. The pair then teamed up to defeat Amber Boormeester and Kelly Voigt of Surinam 53 41 in the doubles. They were playing first to four games with a lead of two games, which gave Antigua and Barbuda the combined points to win the overall Nations Cup. Antigua and Barbuda will defend their title in 2009 on home soil, since the Antigua and Barbuda Tennis Association has made the commitment to host the competition again next year.

ITF Development Officer for the region, Anthony Jeremiah, commented: "Each year I am pleased to see more and more nations participating in the event. This week highlighted quality tennis and team support and these Championships continue to play an essential part in the growth and success of developing players in the English Speaking Caribbean."

Junior Team to North America announced

The ITF Development Department is pleased to announce the selection of players who form the International Junior Team to North America. The team will play the following schedule:

Shvedova wins in Mexico

Yaroslava Shvedova (KAZ) won the first $100,000 tournament to be held in Mexico, during the week of 4th August, when she defeated No. 5 seed Magdalena Rybarikova (SVK) in the final 64 61. This was Shvedova's first ITF singles title since 2006.

The tournament took place in Monterrey in the North Eastern Mexican state of Nuevo León and attracted five top 100 players. Poland's Ursula Radwanska, the 2007 Junior Wimbledon and Junior World Champion, was unable to negotiate her way past the No. 4 seed, Vania King, in the second round. The top seed, 18-year-old Yanina Wickmayer (BEL), the holder of eight career singles titles on the ITF Women's Circuit, was defeated by Rybarikova in the semifinals.
